City ponders sales tax increase: money for road repairs?

The West Sacramento City Council tonight will consider asking the public to vote on a local sales tax increase in November. The bulk of such an increase could go to repair and maintain city streets.

The council will consider asking the public to raise the local sales tax rate by either a quarter-percent or a half-percent from the current, total rate of seven percent. One percent of that seven percent rate is currently earmarked for the city, providing $10 million in annual revenue to the local government. A quarter-percent increase could thus provide another $2.5 million per year, and a half-percent increase could provide $5 million more per year, according to a city staff report.

The city could elect to put a "sunset" onto the new tax, phasing it out over time, but it is not legally required to do so.

West Sacramento's current total sales tax rate of 7.0 percent is lower than the 7.75 percent rate in Sacramento County and City. Either proposed tax increase could still keep the local rate lower than Sacramento's, possibly maintaining a small competitive edge for local retailers.

The funds could be earmarked for city road repairs and maintenance – regarded as an underfunded "sore spot" in West Sacramento.

Or they could help provide services and programs such as parks, street lighting, after-school programs, child care services, or assistance to library or animal control services, suggests the staff report.

City staff recommends that the council begin work on a ballot measure targeted for the November 5 local ballot. A two-thirds vote of approval by the public would authorize the increase.

Opening the doors

West Sacramento's police department on Triangle Court provided live music, refreshments and kids' activities, as it invited the public to an annual "open house" on Saturday. Visitors saw displays of weapons, an armored personnel carrier, police dogs, and police motorcycles. Above, kids try out a chance to throw a ball while having pitching speed measured by a radar gun -- a piece of equipment usually used to get the attention of careless drivers.

Advisory group leans against idea of two high schools

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A local advisory committee is leaning towards construction of a single, central high school to replace West Sacramento's aging and cramped River City High School, said Stu Greenfeld, superintendent of the Washington Unified School District.

"We've met three times," said Greenfeld of his advisory committee. "It appears the general consensus is that we should build one high school to accommodate 3,000 students, and that it should be as central to the community as possible, taking into account the building taking place in Southport. It'll probably need about 65-80 acres, and if possible, we should build it in partnership with Sacramento City College and the city's parks and community services district, with a joint use agreement. We would like to acquire the property as soon as possible, given that available land is rapidly disappearing."

Greenfeld said most members of the committee did not like the idea of building two or more smaller, neighborhood high schools. Some committee members fear that a "have" and "have-not" reputation could develop among high schools serving different neighborhoods of the city.

"There's definitely a feeling across the board that a two-high-school city might engender bad feelings across the community," he stated.

A site is yet to be picked by the advisory committee.

"We have discussed sites ranging form the corner of southeast Linden Road and Jefferson Blvd. to sites currently owned by the (Port of Sacramento) and a couple of sites just off of West Capitol Avenue," said Greenfeld.

The school could cost "up to $75-80 million," he added. The state and other sources would help pay for that, and Greenfeld foresees asking West Sacramentans to pass a $25-30 million bond fund to make up the difference.

Greenfeld formed the "superintendent's facilities advisory committee" to come up with a recommendation for a new high school, and to tackle other facilities issues for Washington Unified School District. He hopes for a recommendation on the high school challenge from the committee by July.

"The committee is a wide array of people – members of the public from Bryte, Broderick, Westmore Oaks, Southport; Oscar Villegas representing the city council; Len Strickland representing the Chamber of Commerce, John Sulpizio representing the port, John Kane representing realtors, David Stroud representing developers, and Ardeen Westvik as the official school board representative. There's over 30 people."

The group is facilitated by consultant Rob Corley.

It meets next, in a meeting open to the public, at the River City High School library on Tuesday at 6 p.m.

Festival will jazz things up

Only one week until music fills the air for the annual Sacramento Jazz Festival – and West Sacramento will lead the way with a "pre-festival jazz concert" May 22 at 5 p.m. at Raley Field. The emcee for the event will be Dewey Hopper of KOVR 13, and entertainment will be provided by Sacramento's "Wooden Nickel Jazz Band," a band of regional high school students called "The New Traditionalists," and "The Hot Jazz Band" from Hungary.

Tickets are $5, and are available from the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce, 1414 Merkley Ave. (371-7042).

The chamber will also sponsor a "Jazzy Pancakes" breakfast, feeding you from 7:30-11 a.m. on Saturday at the River Walk Park (near the "pyramid" building) for only $5 per person. Of course, there will be more live jazz, courtesy of "Black Tuesday Five," "Sacramento Banjo Band," and "The New Holland Combine."

Gas station robbed

A Jefferson Blvd. gas station and market was robbed last Wednesday by a man who may or may not have been armed. The incident occurred about 7:40 p.m. at Rick's Chevron, 1015 Jefferson Blvd.

"A suspect went into the store and asked the clerk for change," said Officer Amy Weirich of the West Sacramento Police Department. "When the clerk opened the cash drawer, the suspect said, 'be cool,' and reached over and grabbed an undisclosed amount of money. The clerk attempted to stop him by slamming the register drawer, but was unsuccessful."

The suspect is described as an African-American male in his mid-20s to mid-30s, about 6' 3" tall, 180 lbs., wearing a black suit jacket, matching pants, and a shirt and tie. He fled in a dark blue Buick four-door sedan.

"No weapon was seen, but the clerk said the suspect kept one hand in one of his pockets."

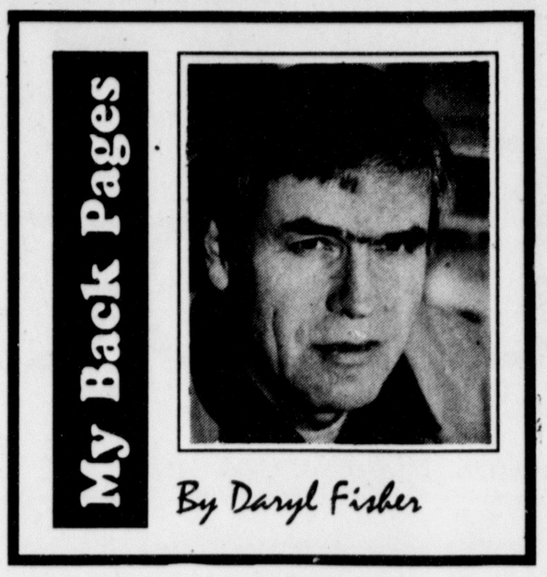

Water: 'tested & safe'

The City of West Sacramento on May 10 announced that tests have shown that the water on Triangle Court is safe to drink. Water at one of the street's businesses had been found to be contaminated earlier with ethylene glycol, a coolant. The plumbing problem believed responsible has been fixed.

A Dept. of Public Works spokesperson said the declaration that the water is safe comes after review of over 100 samples, all showing "non-detect" levels of the substance.

A few thoughts and quotes worth pondering

Have you ever found yourself thinking Walter Mitty-type thoughts as you quietly sit on the couch late at night, semi-watching/listening to some television program you could really care less about? Well, this has been happening to me with unusual frequency lately, and the other evening, as I sat around pretending to be the Albert Camus of my generation, some of the following thoughts/quotes came to mind:

On this stupid possession thing that too many of us seem to have: "He who binds to himself a joy doth the winged life destroy, but he who embraces the joy as it flies, lives in eternity's sunrise."

On the lack of logic in American culture: Did you know that more money is spent on breast implants and viagra each year than on Alzheimer's disease research, which I think means that in 30 years we will have way too many people with great breasts and quality erections who have forgotten what to do with them.

On why the good die young: "The world breaks those that inhabit it and afterward many are strong at the broken places. But those that will not break it kills. It kills the very good and the very gentle and the very brave impartially. If you are none of these you can be sure it will kill you, too, but there will be no special hurry." E. Hemingway

On why we have a national crisis in education: "We do not truly trust educated people and rarely, alas, produce them, for we do not really trust the independence of mind which alone makes a genuine education possible." James Baldwin

On making a difference: "It is from numerous diverse acts of courage and belief that human history is shaped. Each time a man stands up for an ideal, or acts to improve the lot of others, or strikes out against injustice, he sends a tiny ripple of hope, and crossing each other from a million different centers of energy and daring, those ripples build a current which can sweep down the mightiest walls of oppression and resistance." Robert Francis Kennedy

On why so many people avoid serving on boards and committees: "There is this strange expectation in American society that once a problem is defined, no matter how poorly, and understood by a small number of people who have some relation to the problem, that there is no longer a problem." Paulo Freire

On why we should cut ourselves a little slack when it comes to interpersonal relationships: "Don't be playing it safe. Remember, we are not perfect. The snowflakes are perfect. The stars are perfect. We are only human. We are here to ruin ourselves, to break our hearts, to love all the wrong people." Nicholas Cage to Cher in the wonderful movie Moonstruck.

On being able to look at yourself in the mirror: "In this life we prepare for things, for moments and events and situations. We worry about wrongs, think about injustices, read what Tolstoi or Ruskin has to say, then, all of a sudden, the issue is not whether we agree with what we have heard and read and studied, the issus is us, and what we have become." Robert Coles

On how great it is that hope springs eternal: "At any given moment there is always the possibility that right around the corner may come the person who reminds us of our own capacity to surprise ourself."

On the "me first" philosophy of the present generation: "Those who are always looking out for number one, usually end up stepping in number two." Rodney Dangerfield

On getting on with life: "One repays his teachers badly if one always remains a pupil."

And finally, on the relationship between telling the truth and telling a lie: "Truth exists, only falsehood has to be invented."

Since Mother's Day has just come and gone, I also wanted to pass along the following "Mother's Day One-Liners":

If evolution really works, how come mothers only have two hands?

Personally, I think today's kids ought to do something really special for their mothers on Mother's Day -- promise to move out by the age of 25.

A single mom was asked by a friend what her son was taking to college. With a sigh she replied, "Every penny I have."

Most mothers are always amazed when their sons/daughters marry a person with much lower mental capacity and ambition, yet still manage to somehow have utterly brilliant children.

A daughter broke-up with her boyfriend. She asked her mother's advice about returning the gifts he'd given her. Without a pause, her mother replied, "Send back the stuffed animals and letters, but keep all the jewelry for sentimental reasons."

Reminder: The Tony Venditti Benefit Concert will be held this Friday evening, May 17th, at the Sunset Christian Center, 6900 Destiny Drive in Rocklin. It is located directly behind the Wal-Mart store on Highway 65 at Stanford Ranch Road. Choirs and bands from Sunset and Adventure Christian will put on the concert and it is an event suitable to all age groups from all walks of life. Tri-tip sandwiches will be available from 6-7 p.m. and the concert will be from 7-9 p.m. For more information, you can contact Tony's aunt, Gayle Bohlmann at 624-7154.

Anti-tobacco education pays off

From the Yolo Co. Tobacco Prevention Program

A new federal health report issued today by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) shows that smoking caused 38,233 deaths in California in 1999. The report notes that smoking attributable death rates in the United States range from a high of 414.3 per 100,000 to a low of 159.8 per 100,000. The smoking attributable death rate for California is 261.8 per 100,000.

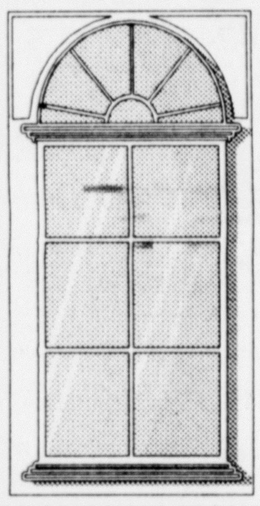

Currently released data also shows that smoking cost California 7.1 billion dollars in direct medical expenditures ($218 per capita) in 1998 and 7.5 billion dollars ($227 per capita) in lost productivity in 1999. California spent 2.3 billion dollars in Medicaid costs - or $326.14 per Medicaid recipient - for smoking-related illnesses and diseases in 1998. Nationwide, smoking caused an estimated 440,000 premature deaths in the United State annually from 1995-1999 and caused more than $150 billion in annual health-related economic losses over the same period. According to the federal report, future changes in the direction of smoking-attributable costs will be related to the direction that state takes with efforts to prevent and control tobacco use.

The report, Tobacco Control State Highlights 2002: Impact and Opportunity, provides current state-based information on the prevalence of tobacco use, tobacco control funding, and tobacco excise tax for 48 states and the District of Columbia. This is the fourth State Highlights report released by the CDC.

"The information in this report will assist us with the development of tobacco control programs that will meet the goal of reducing death and disease caused by tobacco use," said Dr. Bette Hinton, Director/Health Officer. "Investing in tobacco control programs is a wise and fiscally responsible choice for Yolo County."

California will invest $137,816,465 in tobacco control programs this year. This represents only 83 percent of CDC's recommended minimum level of funding for tobacco control programs. Nationwide, six states will meet or exceed the CDC recommendations in 2002.

Investment in state tobacco prevention and control programs varies from $0.33 to $19.16. California will spend $4.02 per capita on tobacco control programs this year.

Kings Korner

Bring on the Los Angeles Lakers!

It's time for the Shaq and Kobe show to visit our cow town! The Kings advance to the Western Conference finals for the first time in a Sacramento Kings uniform. The last time the Kings franchise played in a Western Conference final was in 1981 while wearing the baby blue uniforms of the Kansas City Kings. That year the Kings lost in 5 games to the Houston Rockets who were owned by the Maloof family! The Kings moved to Sacramento prior to the 1985-86 season. Now the Maloofs are back in the playoffs and in the driver's seat to win the whole enchilada.

Sacramento took no prisoners during their shootout with the Dallas Mavericks, winning the best of seven series 4 games to 1 while averaging 112 points a game. After being outcoached in game 2 by Don Nelson, coach Adelman took his boys down to Texas and won two tough games without the services of Peja Stojakovic.

Peja will probably sit out for a least another week to let his sprained ankle rest. Even without the injured star, six Kings scored in double figures but Hedo Turkoglu jump-started the decisive run in game 5 and recorded his first career playoff double-double with 20 points and 13 rebounds

In girls doubles, River City's #2 team of Crystal Koell and Nareeta Singh made it to the semifinals before losing a three-set marathon. River City's top-seeded pair, Keonakone Lattasima

"I'm very excited about this year's competition," said River City teacher and Meet Director Chris Baker. "We have a nice mix of new and veteran lifters and it would not surprise me if a number of school records fall. The competition is that tough."

The Women's Open Division includes competitors Shelley Tuttle, Leanne Briggs and Alex Lokteff. The Men's Open Division includes Clency Pulido, Mike Nelson and Mike Ono. Port expects loss

Editor's Note: The following article appeared in last week's News-Ledger, but was clipped short in a production mistake. It follows in its entirety below.

The News-Ledger apologizes for the mistake.

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

John Sulpizio, director of the Port of Sacramento, reported a "very challenging" financial year for the port, in a presentation to the institution's governing commission Monday in West Sacramento.

Sulpizio's report commented that he expects a loss of about $500,000 for the current fiscal year, which ends in June.

"The year will end with a posting of a loss, the first loss in seven years," said Sulpizio's report. "Our cargo forecast for the end of the year is approximately 860,000 tons; however, the billing mix will be unable to push a profit, and therefore, we are forecasting a net loss of approximately $500,000."

The port director could not be reached for additional detail as the News-Ledger went to press yesterday morning. But it appeared from the port's financial summary that the projected loss would be about twice as large as Sulpizio projected if not for the sale of port real estate, creating "other income" of $555,000.

The year-to-date loss from port operations alone through March was $922,857. After factoring in proceeds from the land sales, the reported loss was only $367,857 through March.

The report added that a "global economic downturn" contributed to the current fiscal troubles, and that such downturns are "exactly why we need to launch our realty program to create new revenues that take the peaks and valleys out of our maritime fiscal performance."

One of the "bright spots" in the port's near future, added Sulpizio, was a new agreement to handle imported cement in large bags. About 150,000 tons of the bagged cement is expected in coming months, and could lead to other bulk imports, he said.

"We're planning a feasibility study of re-vamping the wheat elevator into an import cement facility," stated Sulpizio's report.

Fifty-five vessels called at the Port of Sacramento during the first nine months of the fiscal year. They handled 643,168 tons of cargo, including 216,786 tons of rice, 127,096 tons of wood chips, 109,024 tons of fertilizer and 77,576 tons of sand and aggregate.

The port and its deep water ship canal were completed by the federal government in the 1960s, and are operated by a governing district formed from Sacramento County and eastern Yolo County. The governing commission is composed of representatives appointed by the city councils and county supervisors in the district.

The port is located approximately in the center of West Sacramento, north of the Harbor Blvd./Industrial Blvd. intersection.

Last year, the port reported net income of $819,890.

Sacramento's city council last month opted to spend a year studying the port more closely – and committing to appointing two Sacramento council members to personally serve as the council's representatives on the port commission.

Pat & Dave, new owners of the Silver Spur Lounge, are sure ambitious people. In addition to karaoke on Thursday nights, music and dancing on Friday and Saturday nights, they have now added a jam session 2-6 p.m. on Sundays to their lineup. Also keep watching for news of their kitchen being open real soon.

Silver Spur Lounge, 2125 West Capitol Ave., West Sacramento, 374-9155.

Well, once again Morrison's Mother's Day Brunch was sold out. There are a number of fine restaurants in Northern California, and Morrison's Upstairs/Downstairs is right in there with them. From the sheltered patio, long downstairs bar, second floor balcony (for catered affairs), and the magnificent dining room and small attic bar on the third floor (elevator available), it's a fine place.

Morrison's Upstairs/Downstairs, 1st and Bush Streets, Woodland, (530) 666-6889.

Please note the addition of the gracious Granada Inn to our "Where to Stay" column.

Easily accessible to the freeway and residential areas of West Sacramento, with plenty of parking and Eppie's Restaurant next door, you couldn't ask for more. Yet there is more – spanking clean rooms and a warm and welcoming manager, Rosemary Rivera.

Granada Inn, 4751 West Capitol Ave., 372-2780.

Travel back in time to 1860, when Virginia City was the leading city in Nevada and the brightest light between San Jose and Denver. The "Bonanza" program on TV brought people back to Virginia City in the 1960s, and now museums are everywhere. The Fourth Ward School at Virginia City's south end is a wonderful Victorian schoolhouse turned museum. The "Way it Was" museum on the north side of town is devoted to the mining ways of the many mines in the area. Or if you want, you can tour a mine underground at the Chollar Mine on South F Street.

If you haven't been to Virginia City for awhile, you owe it to yourself to go this summer.

Lots of fun for kids and grown-ups alike.

Editor's Note: Apologies to Carol's Restaurant and anyone inconvenienced by the suggestion to dine there on Mother's Day; the restaurant was closed for the holiday.

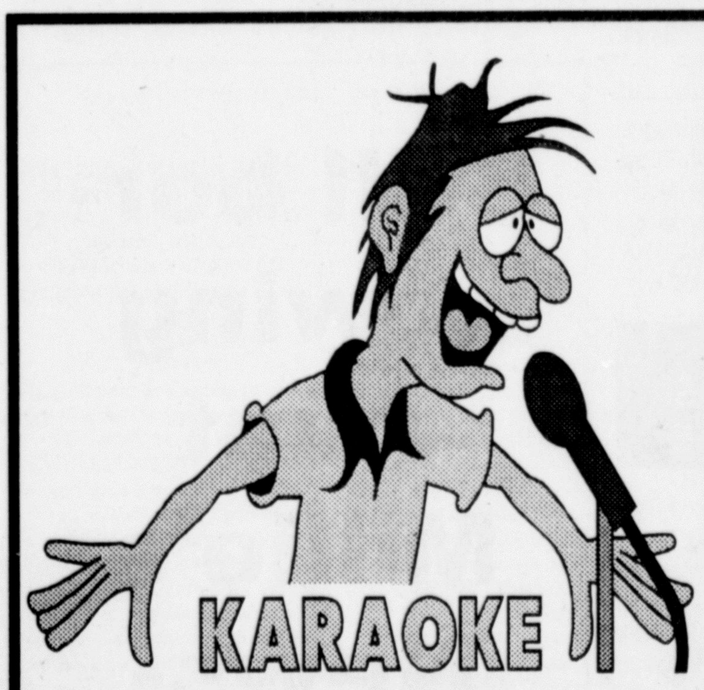

You can reach Teddi c/o the News-Ledger, PO Box 463, W. Sac. CA 95691.

Carol Leonard becomes local rep on county board formed to dispense tobacco taxes

The Yolo County Children and Families Commission (YCCFC) has appointed West Sacramento's Carol Bohnaker-Leonard to serve a two year term representing West Sacramento and Clarksburg.

The commission was created after the passage of Prop. 10 in 1998, which added a 50 cent per package tax on cigarettes to fund programs and services for children five and under. YCCFC has allocated $2.75 million for programs locally since that time.

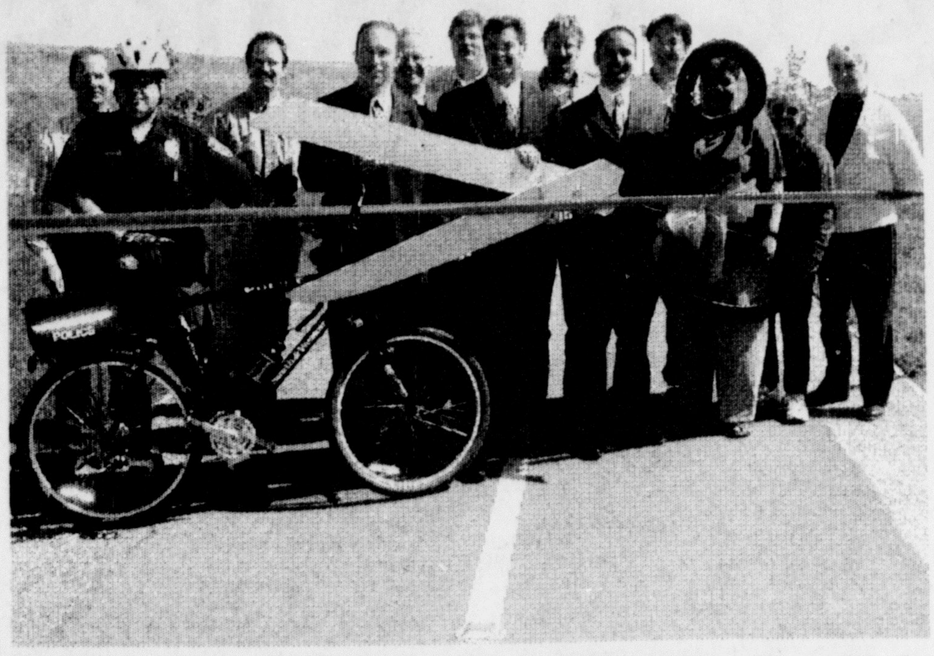

Bohnacker-Leonard has nearly 30 years experience as a nurse practitioner.

She has volunteered at the Shots for Tots fair, been involved in education for teens against drunk driving, and (while living in Santa Clara) served on the Sexual Assault Response Team, working as a medical examiner and expert witness.

"I'm looking forward to making sure the needs of children in West Sacramento and Clarksburg are met through innovative programs made possible by Prop. 10," she said. "We have a richly diverse population that can benefit from literacy rograms, home visits to improve parenting skills, and health care programs funded by the commission."

Bohnacker-Leonard is married to West Sacramento's police chief, Gary Leonard.

West Sacramento Bicycle Path Gateway Offically Opens

The West Sacramento Bicycle Path Gateway was officially opened on May 8, 2002. The project provides a park for cyclists to rest and relax before crossing the Yolo Bypass. The construction of the bicycle park and the relocation of the bike path on West Capitol Avenue provide a safe route around unsafe conditions created by the anticipated interchange improvements. Included in the improvements are landscaping, irrigation, drinking fountain and safety lighting. The project was completed and accepted by the West Sacramento City Council on April 10, 2002.

Letters to the Editor

The News-Ledger reaches Santa Rosa

Since the passing of my father, Ernest C. Van de Wetering on August 23, 2000, I have been receiving his forwarded mail to my residence in Santa Rosa, California. Recently his paid up subscription expired and I decided that I enjoyed receiving his local newspaper so much I would renew for the next two years. My father and mother both resided in West Sacramento from 1939 up to the times of their respective passings in 1987 and 2000. My sister and I both graduated from James Marshall High School in 1955 and 1959 and therefore feel a deep association with West Sacramento. Even today I still occasionally find information about someone I went to school with and its reassuring to know of their accomplishments or family activities. Not too long ago you had an article about a mail carrier, Roy Carreon, who apprehended a thief in his attempted escape. Ray and I graduated from James Marshall in the same year.

I'm a very nostalgic type individual and one thing I would like to see you change is the "Page from the Past". The past you're taking from is too far in the past to have any meaning to your readership. As a suggestion why not draw from the past of the 40s, 50s, 60s and 70s, since at least a majority of your readers may still be alive who lived through those decades.

One last thought, the price of your subscription is worth the cost alone with the excellent columns of your staff writer Daryl Fisher. I read all of his columns and often have them posted on my work bulletin boards so others can share in his humor and insight.

Thanks for helping me keep in touch with my roots of yesteryear.

Factories Seem To Take Shine To Westgate District That Promise Bright Future in Returns

Negotiations are under way at the present time for the establishment of a factory for automobile accessories in Westgate.

The plans are not exactly completed at this writing but are under consideration and are expected to be closed before the end of next week.

The site consists of about five acres located on the line of the San Francisco-Sacramento Short Line Railway immediately north of the location selected last week of D. Carmichael & Son of Oak Park.

The deal is practically certain to go through because already plans have been drawn for the construction of a concrete building large enough to accommodate the employment of about 300 men.

The factory is now located in the southern part of the state and has been in existence for several years, but owing to the encroachments of business the site is considered too valuable to hold for factory purposes.

When it became necessary to look for a new location the owners investigated many locations throughout the state and finally decided under the persuasion of Thomas McAnulty to look into the Westgate locality.

It took some time to decide on this question but now the deal is practically complete with the result that final announcement will be made within the next ten days.

The factory turns out accessories of all kinds for the use of automobiles. During the past ten years it has been a wonderful success in the location it now occupies and would not move were it not that more space is needed for additional employes, machinery and appliances.

The fact that Westgate has available transportation by water, rail and two transcontinental railroads decided the question in favor of Westgate.

These facts are leading many more factory owners to consider locations in Westgate and already inquiries have been made for a site for a lumber yard and another for a sawmill that is now looking for a location.

It must be remembered that the Westgate properties are divided into three distinct varieties, residence, commercial and industrial. These sections are entirely separate and distinct, thus leaving the residence section complete separation from the other districts.

At the present time home building is going steadily forward with not less than five homes in course of construction. Early next Monday two more homes are to be started and a large store of brick construction for which the foundation is already excavated, will be commenced.

This store building measures 35x150 feet and will accommodate seven stores measuring 20x35 feet.

The beauty of the division of properties in Westgate is that the factories will bring the workers who will make their homes in the district and these in turn will maintain the business district. The combination seems to be an excellent one, yet neither district interferes with the other in a detrimental way.

Vicious Reports Indicate Very Rotten Motives

Reports circulated around Washington during the past week seem to have confirmation in publications made in other papers that are entirely false.

In the Mail of Woodland under date of April 28 and under the heading "New Battle Is Planned by Club," the report was published that Chinese gambling had again started in "Broderick" after a lapse of two months.

As a matter of fact gambling had not started on that date and has not started in any of the "Chinese dens" of "Broderick."

It would seem that the Mail gets these reports either by telephone or out of the air and are evidently sent to the Mail with the open intention of injuring the town of Washington and the people of the town.

On account of this injury several of the property owners have started a quiet investigation and it has been found that certain parties in the employ of Sacramento gamblers make it their business to spread these reports so that "no business, in the gambling line, can cross the bridge."

This report was current about two months ago but was not investigated at that time.

It seems that the Sacramento gamblers lose a good deal of trade to the games "across the river."

The only remedial steps that could be taken was publicity in the Woodland papers or the Sacramento papers and many telephonic messages that were false in fact were sent to the Woodland papers and the Sacramento dailies.

The effect of this was that public attention was centered on the games "across the river" while no publicity was directed at the games running in Sacramento or Woodland.

The Independent has not been able to find out who has been doing the telephoning to the Woodland papers and the Sacramento papers, but the reports above mentioned seem to have confirmation in lapsed facts.

The understanding is that some individual is being paid a weekly sum to keep the papers informed of what is going on "across the river." For this service that individual gets a weekly meal ticket or some other small premium.

Residents of Washington are very sore at the publicity given the town under the name of "Broderick" by the Woodland papers.

During the last week several distilleries were taken up five miles south of Washington, yet Woodland papers and Sacramento papers told their readers that the distilleries were taken up in "Broderick."

Then again, a resident of Riverbank cut up a terrible fuss one night last week. He threatened his wife with a shotgun and even threatened Constable Wilson with a loaded shotgun. He broke down the furniture of his house, smashed the windows, breaking the pictures and raised Cain in particular. Finally he was subdued by Deputy Constables Jed Lee, C. A. Newton and Constable Wilson.

But the Woodland papers and the Sacramento papers told their readers that this occurrence took place in "Broderick."

The story concerning the gambling question above narrated has not been confirmed by the Independent but steps are being taken by some property owners of Washington on the quiet to verify it.

The Kings bench came alive in game 3 and 4 with Bobby Jackson and Scot Pollard leading the charge. In game 5 the Kings went wild with Mike Bibby, who was celebrating his 24th birthday, scoring 23 points and six assists. C-Webb added 23 points and Vlade Divac collected 18 points while Bobby Jackson and Doug Christie chipped in 15 apiece for Sacramento.

In their first round victory over the hockey playing Jazz the Kings were tested inside and out but the experience made them stronger as a team. In the second round the Kings showed poise and confidence in the final minutes of each game and that experience will take them over the edge. 2002 is the year of the Sacramento Kings! Get ready in June for the biggest parade in Sacramento history!

The Lakers, leading 3-1, should finish off the choking Spurs on Tuesday night in Los Angeles. If they win, the Western Conference final begins Saturday or Sunday at the friendly confines of the Arco Arena in Sacramento. I can't wait to hear the fans begin to chant - Beat L.A.! Beat L.A.!!

In the Eastern Conference the Celtics, Pistons, Nets and Hornets are still battling for the title but the style of play on the East Coast will be in for big surprise when they lace up the tennies against the winner of the West.

Baseball

The Giants are in town this week hosting a four game series against the Atlanta Braves and a weekend series against the Florida Marlins starting on Friday, May 17th. The A's are on the road this week playing in Boston and Toronto.
